Party and Participant Names and Status

Rules 45.02 and 54.02, subds. 1(h) and (i), of the Rules of Juvenile Protection Procedure (RJPP) provide that it is the responsibility of the petitioner to set forth in the petition the names and addresses of all parties and participants known to the petitioner after reasonable inquiry, and to specify whether each such person has party or participant status. It is the petitioner's obligation to update and provide such information to the parties, participants, attorneys, and court when it becomes known. Court administration staff require this information in order to determine whether the person should be served a Summons and Petition as a party, or a Notice of Hearing and Petition as a participant, and whether the person is to receive copies of any orders which are required to be served only upon parties (unless the court otherwise directs).

Although their party/participant status may change from case to case, following is the party/participant status specified in the RJPP along with their rights.
