Comments on Proposed Rule of Criminal Procedure 4.03

The comments below are presented on behalf of the Minneapolis Police Department and the Minneapolis City Attorney's Office.

Subdivision 2 of proposed Rule 4.03 requires that the police officer who presents the facts establishing probable cause do so under oath. When the officer's presentation is in writing, the proposed Rule provides that the oath may be administered by the clerk or deputy clerk of court or by a notary public.

The oath requirement would make a relatively straightforward process unnecessarily complex and expensive. Indeed, if the proposed Rule is adopted, the probable cause determination will resemble closely the application for a formal complaint under Rule of Criminal Procedure 2. Nothing in the language or logic of the U.S. Supreme Court's opinion in County of Riverside v. McLaughlin mandates such an approach.

To ensure that the police take their responsibilities under the proposed rule seriously, it should be sufficient for the officer to affirm that the submitted facts are true and correct to the best of the officer's belief. This is the current practice in Hennepin County. If the officer making a written submission were required to take an oath, a) the officer would have to appear before the judge or judicial officer making the probable cause determination, b) the clerk or deputy clerk of court would have to be available at night or on weekends to administer the oath, or c) police departments would be required to have a notary public on duty during those periods.

None of these alternatives represent a wise use of scarce public and law enforcement resources. None are required by McLaughlin. And none are necessary, given the requirements of Rule 2 and the mandate in Rule 4.02, subd. 5, that a person arrested without a warrant appear before a judge or judicial officer within 36 hours of arrest.

The Minneapolis Police Department has estimated that it would cost $2500-3000 annually to have notaries available. While this is not a very substantial amount in relation to the Department's total budget, smaller police departments will find the proposed oath requirement much more burdensome. It is not unusual in smaller departments for just one officer to be on duty at a given time. This officer may also be responsible for writing and typing his or her own reports. It will be significantly more expensive, both absolutely and in relative terms, for these smaller police departments to satisfy the oath requirement now contained in proposed Rule 4.02. It goes without saying, of course, that for both large and small departments it would be prohibitively expensive -- or simply impossible from a personnel point of view -- to relieve officers temporarily of street patrol or investigative duties so that they could take the oath before a judge or judicial officer, or the clerk or deputy clerk of court.

The judges' Executive Committee in the Fourth Judicial District has recommended to the Court's Advisory Committee on the Rules of Criminal Procedure that subdivision 2 of the proposed Rule require only that the officer seeking the probable cause determination affirm that the submitted facts are true and correct to the best of the officer's belief. The bench's position reflects the impact the proposed Rule will have on smaller police departments, as well as its experience over the past year with the procedure for making probable cause determinations that it established shortly after McLaughlin was decided in May 1991.

This procedure allows the probable cause determination to be made expeditiously on the basis of the reports prepared by the arresting or investigating officer; a separate, sworn document need not be employed.

In conclusion, the Minneapolis Police Department and the Minneapolis City Attorney's Office respectfully request that proposed Rule of Criminal Procedure 4.03, subd. 2, not require that the facts establishing probable cause be submitted upon oath and that proposed Rule 4.03, subd. 2, instead require that the officer seeking a probable cause determination affirm that the submitted facts are true and correct to the best of the officer's belief.

Thank you very much for your consideration.

Response by Minnesota County Attorneys Association to the Proposed Amendments to the Minnesota Rules of Criminal Procedure

The Minnesota County Attorneys Association (MCAA) respectfully requests that Rule 4.03, Subd. 3 be amended as follows:

Subd. 3. Prosecuting Attorney. No request for determination of probable cause may proceed without the approval, in writing or orally on the record, of the prosecuting attorney authorized to prosecute the matter involved, or by affirmation of the applicant, affirmed on form 44, that the applicant has contacted the prosecuting attorney and the prosecuting attorney has approved the request, or unless the judge or judicial officer reviewing probable cause certifies in writing that the prosecuting attorney is unavailable and the determination of probable cause should not be delayed.

The MCAA concurs in the premise underlying Subd. 3 that the prosecution should, if possible, be involved in the judgment as to whether a person should be detained. In fact, Rule 4.02, Subd. 3, of the Rules of Criminal Procedure, provides for the participation of the prosecutor in the decision as to whether a person should be released. Such involvement can only work to the benefit of the criminal justice system.

We are asking, by way of the proposed amendment, that the rules provide flexibility for the participation of the prosecutor. The current language can be read to require that the prosecutor must sign the application or be present at the time the judge considers the application in order to participate in the process. Some judges may read "orally on the record" to permit telephone approval during their consideration of the application.

In most jurisdictions, it is not possible for the prosecutor to be physically present on weekends or holidays to execute the application or be in telephone contact with the judge when the application is being considered. During weekends or holidays, the common practice is for the police to call the prosecutor, review the facts, and make a joint determination whether to apply for a detention order. In Anoka County, the applicant, as is suggested here, makes a statement under oath in the application regarding the approval of the prosecutor. Under this procedure, the prosecutor may participate in the judgment whether to detain without driving up to 60 miles or trying to discuss the matter over the telephone with a judge. In addition, there are problems inherent in requiring the judge to speak directly with the prosecutor:

1. There may be several prosecutors trying to communicate by phone with a judge making judgments on applications in a short time period.
2. The prosecutor may not be available at the time the judge reviews the application, but may have been available at other times.

Very little substance, if any, is lost if a county attorney is permitted to review and approve an application over the telephone with an applicant. The applicant would not lie on the application regarding approval by the prosecutor. The verbal authority to indicate approval is the equivalent of signing the application.

We ask that the Court make this change in the proposed rules. Such a change will improve the system of justice and result in appropriate detention.

Re: Proposed Amendment to Rule 4 of the Minnesota Rules of Criminal Procedure

Dear Chief Justice and Members of the Minnesota Supreme Court:

I would like to express two concerns I have regarding the proposal to amend Rule 4 by adding Rule 4.03, Subd. 3 and 4 to the Minnesota Rules of Criminal Procedure. First, I do not believe that there is a need in all cases for the prosecuting authority to pre-approve a request by law enforcement to have a judge determine probable cause to hold a person more than 48 hours. During the last year, law enforcement officers in Dakota County have been submitting written or telephonic requests for probable cause determinations without prosecutorial approval in most cases. On occasion, law enforcement officers contact a prosecutor for advice if special problems arise. If the purpose for this proposal is a general concern about law enforcement officers abusing the power of arrest, such a concern is unfounded. Law enforcement officers in Minnesota receive extensive ongoing training regarding all aspects of criminal law and procedure. During the last year, we are not aware of any problems which occurred regarding law enforcement officers abusing the 48 hour rule.

The requirement for prosecutorial approval in all cases will be time consuming for law enforcement officers and more costly to taxpayers. Every increase in the time it takes for an officer to process an individual case increases the time the police officer is not on the street investigating other crimes or protecting the public safety. In addition, increased prosecution costs to both county and city government will result by this proposed rule. All city attorneys in Dakota County are on a contract basis and are essentially part-time. Additional hours of time by city attorneys for review of 48 hour requests will mean additional prosecution costs to the city. I anticipate higher costs for my office as well because of the need to establish after hours on-call availability of prosecutors to handle these 48 hour probable cause determinations. I realize that some prosecutors may wish to be involved in making the decision to continue to detain an individual after their initial arrest. There is, however, no constitutional requirement that this occur, and it is my personal belief that prosecutorial review at this stage in most cases is unnecessary. Judges are fully capable of insuring the protection of an individual's constitutional rights in making an initial probable cause determination. Therefore, I request that the Rules of Criminal Procedure do not mandate prosecutorial approval of probable cause 48 hour holds but rather leave this to the discretion of the prosecutor, police officers or the court in cases where it may be necessary. Language which could accomplish this is as follows:

Subd. 3. Prosecuting Attorney. ~~No request for determination of probable cause may proceed without the approval, in writing or orally on the record, of the prosecuting attorney authorized to prosecute the matter involved, unless the judge or judicial officer reviewing probable cause certifies in writing that the prosecuting attorney is unavailable and the determination of probable cause should not be delayed.~~ The prosecuting attorney authorized to prosecute the matter involved need not be contacted prior to submitting the determination of probable cause to the Court, unless otherwise required by the prosecuting attorney or if deemed necessary by the person requesting a probable cause determination or the Court. The person requesting a probable cause determination shall advise the reviewing judge or judicial officer of whether the prosecuting attorney has been contacted and, if so, what the prosecuting attorney's recommendation is concerning continued detention of the person arrested. A prosecuting attorney may notify the Court that prior approval of the prosecuting attorney is necessary on any request for determination of probable cause, in which event the Court may not make a finding of probable cause without such approval, either in writing, orally on the record or by affirmation of the person requesting a probable cause determination, unless the judge or judicial officer reviewing probable cause certifies in writing that the prosecuting attorney is unavailable and the determination of probable cause should not be delayed. If, in the discretion of the prosecuting attorney, a complaint complying with Rule 2 is obtained within the time limit provided by this rule, it shall not be necessary to obtain any further determination of probable cause under this rule to justify continued detention of the defendant.

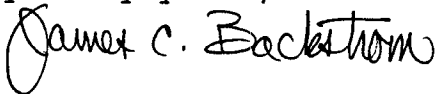

A second area I am concerned with is the portion of proposed Rule 4.03, Subd. 4, concerning establishing bail at the time of initial probable cause determination. My concern is that bail or other conditions of release will be set by the court without the court being fully apprised of all the relevant facts. Probable cause determinations typically will be used on weekends when corrections departments, bail evaluators, prosecutors, and defense attorneys may not be available to inform the court of all the relevant facts so that appropriate bail and/or conditions of release may be set. Bail would only be an issue on serious offenses because the suspect can bail out under the standard bail schedule in effect for minor offenses. Serious offenses require full participation by all the relevant participants in the criminal justice system as to what the appropriate amount of bail should be. In serious offenses, more time is needed for a competent, complete bail hearing. In these cases, the actual charge itself is a major factor in establishing what the appropriate amount of bail should be. It is not unconstitutional to hold someone without bail until their first appearance following formal charging at which time more information would be available to aid the Court in making this determination. Consequently, I believe this rule should be clarified to clearly indicate that the Court has the option to hold a person without bail until their first appearance after charging. Language which could accomplish this is as follows:

Subd. 4. Determination. Upon the information presented, the Court shall determine whether there is probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and that the person arrested committed the offense. If probable cause is found, the Court may set bail or other conditions of release, or hold the arrested person without bail until appearance pursuant to Rule 4.02, or release the arrested person without bail pursuant to Rule 6. If probable cause is not found, the arrested person shall be released immediately. The determination of the Court shall be in writing and shall indicate whether probable cause was found, and, if so, for what offense, whether oral testimony was received concerning probable cause, and the amount of any bail or other conditions of release which the Court may have set. A written notice of the Court's determination shall be provided to the arrested person forthwith.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment upon your proposed criminal rule changes.

Very truly yours,

IN RE: Statement of Fifth Judicial District Bench to the Minnesota Supreme Court regarding the proposed amendment to the Rules of Criminal Procedure, specifically Rule 4.03, Probable Cause Determination.

To the Honorable Court:

Following is the written statement of the Fifth District Bench regarding the proposed amendments to Criminal Rules by the addition of Rule 4.03 in response to County of Riverside v. McLaughlin, 111 S.Ct. 1661 (1991). This position was taken following a review of the notice and proposed rule as published in Finance and Commerce July 3, 1992 and upon vote by the members of the Fifth District Bench at a special meeting.

First, the proposed Rule 4.03, Subd. 1, talks about a probable cause determination without "unnecessary" delay. Minnesota Rules of Criminal Procedure 4.02, Subd. 5 (1), likewise speaks of without "unnecessary" delay. The McLaughlin case speaks of "unreasonable" delay. Consistency in terminology between Subd. 1 of proposed Rule 4.03 and the McLaughlin case may well be more important than consistency between Subd. 1 of the proposed rule and Rule 4.02, Subd. 5 (1). The comments to the new proposed rule actually quote from the McLaughlin case and define by example "unreasonable delay". Unreasonable delay may best serve the purpose by being defined in the body of Rule 4.03, Subd. 1, to show that delay for purposes of gathering additional evidence to justify the arrest or delay motivated by ill will against the arrested individual or delay for delay's sake will not protect the arresting agency from any claims.

The McLaughlin case does not provide for a mandatory release of the Defendant if the probable cause determination is not made within 48 hours. It, rather, shifts the burden to the government to demonstrate the existence of a bona fide emergency or other extraordinary circumstance. In that regard, it is suggested that Rule 34.02 of Minnesota Rules of Criminal Procedure be considered wherein any time period could be enlarged without absolute necessity of release.

The next area to be addressed is that of prosecutor approval. Under proposed Rule 4.03, Subd. 3, such requirement is set forth with the provision that the Court can determine that the prosecuting attorney is unavailable and that the matter should proceed without delay for determination of probable cause. The prosecutors in the Metropolitan area may well be on call during the likely weekend periods when a 48-hour probable cause determination is necessary. In the out-state areas, especially, it may be unclear who the prosecutor is. In addition, the issue as to what amount of searching a law enforcement officer must do to find the prosecutor is "unavailable" may arise. Because this rule and the McLaughlin case apply to all warrantless arrests, i.e., misdemeanor, gross misdemeanor and felony, there are a myriad of jurisdictions and small city prosecutors who may well be from some distance that are either not equipped or ill-equipped to have an active participation in this process without undue delay. The Fifth District currently furnishes faxes for the judges' homes. Perhaps the next step necessary would be to furnish faxes to the prosecutors' residences for compliance with the requirements. (It will be noted later that a one-page document with police reports attached be the sum and substance of the process, rather than four pages of forms, plus police reports, under the proposed rule.)

The recommendation of the Fifth District is that the requirement that the prosecutor approve be eliminated. It may be important to acknowledge that the involvement of the prosecutor would be discretionary, and the prosecutor could give directive to the law enforcement agencies in their jurisdiction as to when and if they wanted such involvement.

Next, Attachment "A", entitled Probable Cause Affidavit and Judicial Determination, is suggested as a substitute for the proposed Forms 44, 45 and 46. Under the Probable Cause Affidavit portion, if it is deemed necessary that an affirmative statement be made regarding any earlier application, same could be added as Paragraph No. 6 of the attached form to read as follows:

"6. There was/was not a prior application for probable cause to detain this person submitted to the Court.

If so, explain. _____"

In the Judicial Determination portion, if probable cause is found, the paragraph sets forth the authorizations that the detaining agency has, including the ability to release pursuant to Rule 6 of the Rules of Criminal Procedure. In that same paragraph, even though McLaughlin does not require same, if it is deemed appropriate to provide for notice to the arrestees of the Judicial Determination as provided in the last sentence of Subd. 4 of proposed Rule 4.03, the language could be added to the last sentence of that paragraph of the attached form to read as follows:

"A copy of this Order shall be furnished to the Sheriff or detaining agency, the arresting agency, and the arrestee forthwith."

For purposes of a record of providing notice to the arrestee, the following language could be added on the bottom of Attachment "A":

"Date and Time Notice Given: _____
Name of Person Giving Notice: _____"

Although there was no copy of the first page of Form 45 published in the July 3, 1992 Finance and Commerce, it appears as though the second page of Form 45 was published along with Form 44 and 46. The proposed Form 46, entitled Notice of Judicial Determination of Probable Cause to Detain, in the preface as to the actions of the Judge, uses the words "... probable cause to detain you further pending your first court appearance...", and in the determination itself, Form 46 states, "pending your appearance in court...". That language appears to overlook the possibility that the probable cause determination may be combined with the first court appearance; and, further, overlooks that the detainee may be released under other provisions of the Criminal Rules of Procedure by the detaining agency, prosecutor, or a judge. Furthermore, the actual determination in Form 45, which is the Court's Order, uses the following language:

"It is hereby ordered that said arrestee be detained subject to the requirements of the Minnesota Rules of Criminal Procedure and further Order of this Court."

The determinations made by the Court and the notice to the arrestee as to those determinations should be consistent, and that would certainly be accomplished by using the one-page format without multiple applications, orders and notices.

It is respectfully requested that the above comments and input be considered by the Court in determining the language and content of the proposed Amendment by adding Rule 4.03 and the forms that will be promulgated thereby.

Respectfully submitted,

RE: Criminal Rule 4.03

Dear Sandy:

By separate cover, we are sending you a position of the Fifth Judicial District Court opposing the proposed Rule change as recommended by the Supreme Court Advisory Committee on the Rules of Criminal Procedure. I thought I could summarize the two major portions which we oppose.

First of all, we adopted a one-page Probable Cause Affidavit and Judicial Determination form in the Fifth Judicial District which we have been using successfully without any problem since the U.S. Supreme Court issued the order of County of Riverside v. McLaughlin. We do not want to replace our version by the three or four pages required by the proposed Rule.

Secondly, we do not wish the mandatory requirement involving the prosecutor in every requested detention. Misdemeanor prosecution within a municipality is handled by a city attorney. In almost every case, the defendant is arrested and appears in court the following Monday or Tuesday with or without an attorney and enters a plea of guilty. Most prosecutors are not involved in the prosecution unless a not guilty plea is entered or a demand is made for a formal complaint. Most small town attorneys are paid by their municipalities on an hourly rate. The proposed Rule is going to increase cost of prosecution greatly to the small municipality.

September 4, 1992

Let me give you an example from Lyon County. Garvin is a city with a population with about 400 people about 18 miles south of Marshall. Its part-time prosecutor is an attorney that lives on a farm in the Russell, Minnesota, area which is about the same distance west of Marshall. The attorney's law office is at Tyler in Lincoln County which is about 30 miles southwest of Marshall. This attorney should not be required to be on duty every weekend and have the travel involved between the different locations. As a rule, a person arrested in Garvin would be transported to the Lyon County Law Enforcement Center in Marshall so the offense would occur in Garvin, the defendant would be in Marshall, the attorney would be on a farm by Russell with his law office in Tyler. Nor do I feel that the requirement should then require that the review be made by a County Attorney who would be making binding decisions affecting the municipality which is represented by a different attorney.

In conclusion, the Fifth Judicial District promptly adopted a form and procedure, a copy of which is attached, and our system works very well. We just wish to be left alone.

With best wishes,

RE: Proposed Amendments to Rule 4.03

Dear Members of the Court:

Pursuant to Supreme Court Order No. C1-84-2137, I wish to make the following written statement to the Minnesota Supreme Court regarding the recommendations of the Supreme Court Advisory Committee on the Rules of Criminal Procedure.

1. The Oath Requirement.

The requirement that peace officers sign under oath is unnecessary, expensive, and burdensome. Therefore, I recommend that the requirement for such a signature under oath be eliminated.

2. Bail Review.

Additionally, the portion of the rules that permit the judge to review and/or set bail is unnecessary and inadvisable at this stage of the proceedings. Since no formal charges have been issued and since there is very little information about the crime or the arrestee, the judge should not be encouraged to conduct a bail proceeding. The likelihood is that any decision emanating from this proceeding will be ill advised and will permit some offenders to be released who are either dangerous to the public or likely to flee.

Thank you for the opportunity to be heard.

Respectfully submitted,

MICHAEL O. FREEMAN

RE: Supreme Court Advisory Committee's Proposed Amendments
Regarding County of Riverside v. McLaughlin

Dear Mr. Grittner:

The proposed rule changes to be addressed at the hearing on September 10 were reviewed and discussed within our office and we would like to make the following observations for your consideration.

It is our feeling that the proposed rule goes farther than is necessary to meet the mandates of Riverside. Our understanding of Riverside, which is a civil case, is that after 48 hours the detention of an arrestee is presumed unreasonable and the burden shifts to the government to demonstrate the reasonableness thereof. Therefore, it would seem unnecessary to mandate that any person who had been held for a period of 48 hours would automatically be released in every situation if a probable cause determination had not been made. At a minimum, there should be some ability for the government to request an extension. This would be consistent with the present practice under the 36-hour rule.

Likewise, it does not seem that the Riverside case would require a written or oral request on the record by a prosecuting attorney in order for the court to determine probable cause, or that a written notice be provided to the arrested person of such a probable cause determination.

Sincerely,

RICHARD M. ARNEY, COUNTY ATTORNEY

Dear Members of the Court:

Pursuant to Supreme Court Order #C1-84-2137, we wish to present this written statement to the Minnesota Supreme Court regarding the recommendation of the Supreme Court Advisory Committee on Rules of Criminal Procedure to Amend Rule 4.03 of the Minnesota Rules of Criminal Procedure.

RESOLVED:

The Hennepin County Suburban Prosecutors' Association is opposed to the proposed rule requiring a peace officer's signature to be under oath for the purpose of obtaining a 48 hour hold probable cause determination.

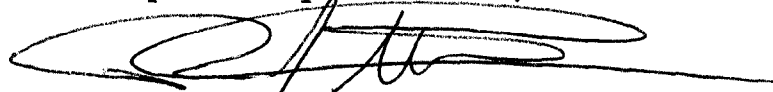

Such a requirement would create undue burden and delay in many police departments.

On behalf of the Hennepin County Suburban Prosecutors, we respectfully request that the oath requirement proposed in Rule 4.03 (Subd. 2) of the Minnesota Rules of Criminal Procedure be eliminated.

Further, the Hennepin County Suburban Prosecutors authorize Mr. Dan Mabley of the Hennepin County Attorney's office to make any oral or written presentation he sees fit to make related to this issue on our behalf.

Resolution passed unanimously at the August 20, 1992, meeting of the Hennepin County Suburban Prosecutors' Association.

Respectfully submitted,

RE: Proposed Amendment to Rule 4.03, R. Crim. Proc.

CI-84-2137

Dear Sir:

I strongly protest the proposed change of Rule 4.03 as contained in the July 3, 1992 issue of Finance and Commerce. There is absolutely no need for the officer's report to be under oath nor is there any need for the county attorney to become involved. To impose these additional requirements would make the procedure more complicated than a probable cause hearing under State v. Florence, 306 Mn. 442, 239 NW2d 892 (1976).

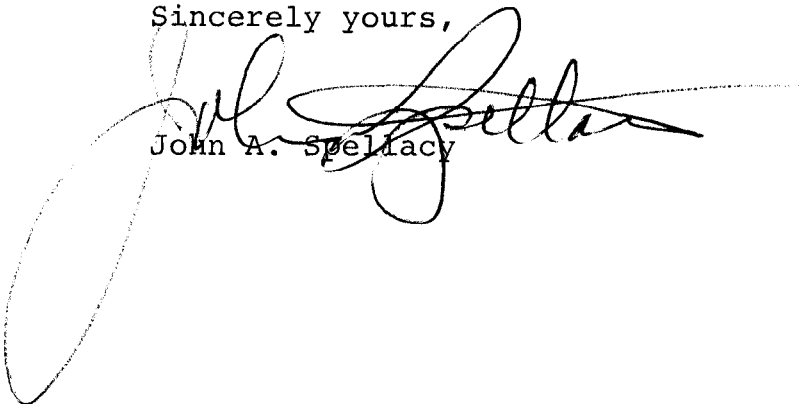

The procedure should be relatively simple. In Itasca County we require that the officer fill out a detailed probable cause report in his own handwriting and that he sign it when the arrestee is booked into the jail. He is seen the next day by myself or another judge if I am not available. I go into the jail each Saturday and Sunday when I am not out of town. Today, which is a holiday in Itasca County, I went to the jail and processed three persons detained. I will do the same thing tomorrow and Sunday. If the officer's report shows probable cause for the arrest without a warrant, I make a finding of probable cause using the enclosed form. I am also enclosing a copy of the officer's report form.

It is utterly impractical and unnecessary for the officer to make any attempt to contact the county attorney since the man is going to be seen by a judge within the 48 hour mandated period. There is likewise no need for the officer's report to be under oath. To engraft that requirement goes substantially beyond the McLaughlin decision and would require a notary public to be in the jail at all times. The alternative of having the officer go back to the jail when the judge arrives is cumbersome and quite ridiculous.

Minnesota Supreme Court

I do hope and trust for the sake of the officers, prosecutors, trial judges, jailers, and most of all, the arrestees, that we will not over-react and unnecessarily complicate the McLaughlin appearance.

Sincerely yours,

John A. Spellacy

Re: Proposed Rule 4.03, Minn. R. Crim. Proc.

C1-84-2137

Dear Mr. Grittner:

I wish to make a brief written comment about the newly proposed Rule 4.03 of the Minn. R. Crim. Proc., thus enclosed are twelve copies of this letter pursuant to the Order of the Chief Justice, dated June 23, 1992.

I am a criminal defense attorney. I was a prosecutor for 9 years and have been defending for over 5 years.

My only comment is to suggest clearer terminology for Rule 4.03, Subd. 3. The proposed language, relevant to my comment, reads:

If, in the discretion of the prosecuting attorney, a complaint complying with Rule 2 is obtained within the time limit provided by this rule, it shall not be necessary to obtain any further determination of probable cause under this rule to justify continued detention of the defendant. [Emphasis added.]

I am assuming that the emphasized language--"is obtained"--is intended to cover the situation where a judge has signed the complaint, with its attendant finding of probable cause, and that the language does not substitute the mere drafting of a complaint by the prosecutor for judicial review of probable cause. If that is correct, I respectfully suggest a change from "is obtained" to language that makes it clear that the alternative to the judicial review envisioned by Subd. 1 is a complaint which complies with Rule 2, reviewed and approved by a judge.

July 30, 1992

Perhaps Rule 2 can be read to mean that in order for any complaint to be in compliance with said rule, it must be signed by or at least "made upon oath before a judge or judicial officer" (Rule 2.01), but the language proposed and the comment on that provision do not make it clear what is meant by allowing the prosecutor to "obtain" a complaint. Under Rule 2.01, a complaint is defined in the first sentence without reference to whether or not it has been reviewed by a judge or judicial officer. Thus, one could, arguably, "obtain" a "complaint" in compliance with Rule 2 without having yet gone to a judge or judicial officer for approval. The phrase "obtaining a complaint" is not a legally defined term in the rules, so far as this writer can see.

Thus, it is suggested that the new rule make clear that the alternative to the new probable cause determination within 48 hours is the review and approval of a complaint in compliance with Rule 2, by a judge or judicial officer.

Thank you for your kind consideration to this matter.

Yours very truly,

ALLAN H. CAPLAN & ASSOCIATES, P.A.
